After wrestling four days with the subject
the Coroner's Jury in the case of Lee Stewart returned a verdict late yesterday evening of however, showed a terrible state of affairs in certain quarters of the city that need keeping an eye on.

At Fountain Springs, ten miles from Flemingsburg, is Park Lake covering an area of eighteen acres. The water is clear and deep, in a number of places over thirty feet. Forty waters recently. Park Lake is owned by a joint stock company, a number of whom live in Maysville.

It is intended only for use of its owners and their guests, no outsiders are permitted to fish in it or camp on its banks. It is surrounded by mountains and it is proposed to make it one of the loveliest spots in Kentucky. It already abounds in fine fish.

is terrible. As they pass up and down the strings of oaths several yards in length. A hint to the wise should be sufficient."

A KANSAS man has sold his whiskers for $8. This, then, is the end of the Populist party.—Philadelphia North American.

WITH his eighth wife nagging at him, GERONIMO prefers the peace and quiet of the war-path, naturally.—Commercial Tribune.

It looks a little unpatriotic for such a typical American as Senator BEVERIDGE for him to have his nuptials bear the device: "Made in Germany."

IN Kentucky it is the liquor question that political fellows are up against. In Indiana it is the labor question. No two states are alike on any proposition.

THE HON. WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN will orate on his dear "initiative and referendum" today at the Lebanon Chautauqua. Senator BEN TILLMAN will raise Cain there July 24th.

THE Emperor of Korea has been invited to become an honorary life member of the Oriental Down and Out Club, by his royal nibs, the Mikado of Japan. Korey will doubtless accept.

THE Jamestown Exposition is now nearing completion, and visiting tourists declare that the big show is away beyond what they expected to see. There are many new inventions never before exhibited at any exposition. The exposition does not close until December 1st, and the late fall is the pleasantest time to enjoy a visit to the greatest show ever given in the South.

CARBOLIC acid as a summer beverage seems to be quite popular with some people. It is hot stuff, but is guaranteed to have an ultimate soothing effect of long duration. Better stick to lemonade.

THE Louisville Courier-Journal, the ablest Democratic Southern newspaper, is as bitter and merciless in its criticism of Governor

BECKHAM and his machine methods, as any Republican paper could very well be. In a "veiled" editorial, Marse

HENRY thusly pays his respects to the Frankfort Napoleon of politics:

If the Governor of Kentucky has made a close compact with the enemies of his party in Louisville whilst outwardly appointing Democrats to office; if he has betrayed his life-long friends into the hands of his life-long enemies; if he is running as a Democrat in the state and as a Mugwump in the city—if he has a private agreement with the Beer Trust and the Saloon League whilst posing as a Prohibitionist—wherever he is charged—that is his own affair.

"Old Timer" should remember the adage that "politics makes strange bedfellows."

Hitherto, at least, the Governor has shown that he understands his vocation.

He has made himself master of the situation in Kentucky as decisively as QUAY ever made himself master in Pennsylvania and PLATT in New York.

The machinery of politics could not have been more intelligently or unsparingly employed.

Hostile criticism calls this Bossism; friendly, Leadership.

Whichever it is, in respect to Governor BECKHAM, it is "the Democratic party," just as Mr. GRAINGER and Mr. BARTH, the Governor's near friends, whilst they controlled the local machinery here were "the Democratic party."

A ROMANCE IN AN ELEVATOR

By C. J. COOKE.

"Miss Mendon is wanted at the telephone," said the elevator boy at the Paradise flats as he stood at the door of Mrs. Currier's dining-room on the fourth floor.

Grace left the dinner table and the guests with a little sigh of impatience. The elevator was waiting, and she was at the telephone booth on the first floor in a minute.

The call was from Ethel, the irresponsible one.

"I am ill and cannot come to your aunt's dinner," said Ethel, "but I have sent my cousin Robert, who has just come from Denver. He did not want to go, of course—said it was cheeky of him to call that way upon strangers. But I made him go. The big goose doesn't know how to deny me anything. You must receive him with a welcome. Isn't it a joke?"

How like Ethel that was? Of course the western cousin would be late and embarrassed and uncomfortable. Well, no matter, thought Grace as she hurried back to the elevator. It served him right for being a big goose and letting Ethel boss him about.

"Going up!" shouted a voice in the hall just as the elevator boy closed the door of his little cage. The boy opened the door again and waited, and a tall young man rushed into the car.

"Ethel's cousin," thought Grace, for she had seen his photograph often, but she said nothing. The young man took off his hat, and Ethel admired his strong, clean face. The elevator started upward with a jerk, and then stopped with a jerk between floors. The boy pulled at the lever, but the machinery failed to work. The elevator would not go up; it would not go down.

"What's the matter?" asked the young man.

"Stuck," said the boy. He proved it by throwing the lever first backward, then forward.

"I hope you're not frightened," said the young man, turning to Grace, with a smile.

"Of course not," she assured him.

The janitor came and managed to pry open the gates on the second floor. There was a space of about a foot there, and the boy climbed up and wriggled out like an eel, regardless of the janitor's rough remonstrances.

She sat down on the boy's stool and tried to look cheerful.

"Are you in Mrs. Currier's party?" he asked.

"I am Mrs. Currier's niece. And you are Ethel's cousin?" she ventured.

"Yes; Robert Murchison. Shall we call it an introduction, Miss Mendon?"

"How did you know my name?"

"Ethel told me. I had just been looking at your photograph."

Then the elevator dropped into the basement well with a chug that caused a scream from the women who were waiting for the rescue of Grace.

Then the lights went out. The basement was dark save for the distant glow of the furnace doors that threw a red glare across the top of the car.

"Are you all right?" asked the engineer from above. Be patient. We'll have you out pretty soon.

"How many matches have you got?" asked Grace.

"Four," said he.

"Then give me two of them," she commanded.

He gave them to her, and did not release her hand, but pressed it reassuringly.

"You are the bravest girl I ever saw."

"I am trying to be brave, thank you," she said. "But which photograph did you see?"

She lighted a match and held it before his face as if she wanted to see the answer as well as hear it.

"The one you had taken for Turner," he said.

She blew the match out hastily.

"How extravagant you are!" he exclaimed. "It was not half burned up."

"What did Ethel tell you about him?"

"That he was the fifth," he replied, gravely.

"I will pay her for that."

"She doesn't charge anything," said Ethel's cousin. "By the way, is there a sixth?"

"Have you had a sixth?" she asked and one could imagine that she was smiling.

"Only a first," he said fervently.

"Tell me about her. That is so interesting."

"I love her," he began.

"And she?"

"I do not know," sadly. "I hardly dare to hope. You see, I have known her only an hour."

"You are ridiculous," she said, softly.

"I am in earnest. May I hope to be the sixth?"

"There will be no sixth," she whispered. "There will be only a first. The other five do not count."

"The machinery is fixed again," bawled the engineer from above. "If you will move the lever over a little—just a little—the car will rise."

"The boy may have been right," he said, gravely. "In case we should go up to the roof—and beyond—tell me, dear one, before we start, do you think if I should attempt to kiss you that I would be taking an undue advantage of your helpless position? Tell me?"

She shook her head enigmatically. The car began to move slowly upward.

"Quick," she whispered. "Kiss me before we reach the light."

MAJORITY VERDICT

In Jury Cases Advocated—In Vogue in Scotland

Lawyers are discussing with much interest an argument for verdicts by a majority vote, according to the code in Scotland. The article is from the pen of Rufus Fleming, formerly editor of the Times Star, at present American consul to Edinburgh, Scotland. Mr. Fleming's article has the honor place in the current number of the Michigan Law Review. His official position has given him exceptional opportunity to become acquainted with his topic, and he treats it in a comprehensive, entertaining manner. His conclusions are listed as follows:

Cost in civil cases reduced to the minimum; new trials being rare.

Cost in criminal cases held to the minimum, for second trials are not held.

Justice is rendered, as compromise verdicts are not had, in which an intelligent majority has not been required to yield a point to meet an ignorant minority.

Mr. Fleming also finds that Scottish jurisprudence results in prompt, efficient and less expensive administration of justice by majority verdicts in all jury cases; restriction of jury trials to cases in which policy and propriety require that a Court should not pass on the facts; care exercised by the Court that counsel shall not mislead the jury.

Do Physics Make You Weak?

Most physics do. Salts, castor oil, and nearly all the patent tablets and pills sold as cathartics and laxatives have a dangerous effect upon the digestive organs. In time, strength is regained but not before great danger is done to the tissues of the bowels and intestines.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is not like any other physic you can take, because instead of weakening the intestinal muscles, it gives them strength sufficient to voluntarily perform their functions.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, unlike other remedies often taken for stomach disorders, does not create a habit which makes it necessary for the patient to continue its use. Physics that leave you weak, that cause you to perspire, and to feel nervous invariably do great harm.

You never experience any such unpleasant and dangerous sensations from taking Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a pleasantly palatable remedy which never causes griping and in all cases of constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia, gas on stomach, and all other disorders arising from such ailments it quickly and permanently cures.

All druggists sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at 50c and $1.00 a bottle.

Money back if it doesn't benefit you.

LIQUOR SELLING

On Steamboats—Government Officials at Cincinnati Going After Them

Because of complaints, U. S. Attorney McPherson and U. S. Steamboat Inspector-in-Charge Crumbaugh are investigating Federal and State Laws preparatory to proceeding against steamboats on the Ohio river in this district upon which, it is charged gambling is permitted. Attorney McPherson said: "We have not decided what, if anything, will be done."

"The matter presents some legal problems."

"Whether Federal officers have the authority to arrest the officers of a boat at a Cincinnati landing for permitting gambling, we have not as yet determined. Kentucky has jurisdiction over all felonies occurring on the Ohio river up to low-water mark on the Ohio side, and it may be for the Kentucky authorities to prosecute the owners."

On boats no liquor is sold nor is gambling permitted while they are tied up to the Ohio side.

As soon as the boats have left the Ohio shore, gambling and the selling of liquors begins, it is said.

READ THIS AND PROEIT THEREBY!

This is a trying time of the year. Many discomforts arise from the heat. The best way to be comfortable is by bathing often, at least twice daily, and by using a liberal quantity of talcum powder. By bathing often one keeps the skin clean and the pores open, thereby allowing the entire body to "breathe freely," which means perfect health.

The best soap to use for the bath and toilet is Fiebig's Complexion Soap, a non-injurious, healthful soap. Talcum powder keeps the skin cool, allays heat rash, stops chafing and is an excellent toilet requisite. We have a number of kinds.

A threshing machine belonging to John Fields, at work on the farm of Dr. Word, in Christian county, was blown up with dynamite which had been concealed in a bundle of wheat. The tobacco war is held responsible for the affair, as both the owner of the machine and the man on whose place it was working are non-Association farmers.

Maysville is forging to the front in more ways than one. The structure has a concrete foundation and is both substantial and pretty.
